About our speaker: Through her innovative platforms like the Genealogy Gems Podcast and a thriving YouTube channel, Lisa Louise Cooke empowers a global audience to uncover their family stories. Lisa is the author of several bestselling books, including The Genealogist's Google Toolbox, 3rd Edition, and offers resources through her website, <https://lisalouisecooke.com>. A trusted voice in the field, she pens a regular column for Family Tree Magazine.

About our program: Discover what a long-forgotten book can reveal about your ancestor's life. Google Books gives you access to millions of digitized volumes filled with local histories, family stories, maps, photographs, and clues you may never find in a conventional genealogy search. Learn how to find books you can read and download for free, expertly search them for genealogical details, and explore foreign-language volumes from your ancestor's homeland. Then go beyond the text to uncover maps, images, and photographs in this resource.

EGS September 10 Meeting recap

Blaine Bettinger, Using Autosomal DNA for 18th and 19th Century Mysteries

<https://thegeneticgenealogist.com/category/genealogy/>

Shared Matching:

- Gives extra information, letting you know that your matches match with each other, and now you have a cluster of matches.
- Gives you clues and information that you didn't have with individual matches.
- If there is one known match in the cluster, you can posit which line everyone in the cluster is related on.

Warning:

The unfavorable case where in a 3-person cluster, each pair of 2 people in the cluster have a different shared ancestor, where you would want and expect that all 3 of you have one single shared ancestor.

Blaine showed us how to check for shared matches using Ancestry, 23andMe and FamilyTreeDNA.

Shared Match Net

He showed how to choose which known matches to investigate and how to choose the best branch point.

Case Study

Using shared matching, he showed how to find an unknown ancestor who was the mother of a family member born in 1889.

Recording

This presentation was recorded for EGS members only to view.

EGS September 10 Meeting recap

Blaine Bettinger, Using Autosomal DNA for 18th and 19th Century Mysteries

What is better than one summary? Why, a second summary, of course!

Shared matches – organizes matches from closest to furthest

- When you and two others match it's called a cluster
 - Option #1 – Favorable, all three share common ancestor
 - Option #2 – Unfavorable, you share ancestor with matches, but matches don't share with each other. Not helpful for research.

Multiple genealogy sites offer matches:

Ancestry – Can check for shared matches with anyone on match list. Minimum 20cm shared for matches to show up as cluster. This prevents unfavorable Option #2 above from showing.

Example: You have a new match, but they have no tree then use shared matches by clicking on your match's name, and then click on shared matches. You can hypothesize that you have a shared ancestor.

If you recognize a name on their tree, then you can hypothesize that the ancestor you share with the known match is the same as the other shared matches perhaps a few generations back. Contact the matches and ask if they recognize names from your tree. The less % shared, the further back the shared ancestor.

If you do not recognize any names on their tree, then can still hypothesize that all matches have a common ancestor, but you can't identify them. Go into their tree and check locations and names for clues.

Goal: Identify common ancestor shared by cluster. Can create a tree for an unlinked cluster to research but won't know how to connect it to your tree.

Ancestry Pro Tools – lowers minimum match to 8cm for yourself and a single match. Will not lower minimum between your matches to each other so you won't see the cluster.

FamilyTreeDNA and 23andMe: offer similar, not identical match services.

To solve mysteries:

1. Test the oldest generation available
2. Determine if resulting matches are from maternal or paternal lines using your knowledge of family surnames
3. Eliminate the matches from the line which you are not researching
4. To simplify eliminating matches, get as close to the "Branch Point" as possible. This is where the lines of the two test takers diverge. Getting close to the Branch Point eliminates generations of DNA contributions from non-related spouses.
5. Going back six generations the matches are unlikely to help. However, if you have a 5th generation match but male line is broken, can use mitochondrial DNA test to see matches passed from mother to daughter
6. Test as many branches as possible
7. If match has no tree then build an unlinked, research tree for them

President's Message

I was excited to see the large turnout for our first meeting of the 2026-2027 program year! I hope new attendees will join us again as the year progresses. Beth Snyder, our Program Chair, is continuing to finalize the presenters for the rest of the year, and as always, we welcome your suggestions for speakers and/or topics that you'd like to hear. You can reach her via email.

October Opportunities

Saturday, October 10, 1:30 PM - What's in Your Attic
In-person - Bellevue Library, Room 1

October is National Family History Month, and EGS and the Bellevue Library are hosting the third annual What's In Your Attic event. Consider bringing a family treasure for "show and tell," and contact Kimberly Nichols so she can allocate space for you. Our speaker will provide an appraisal and/or suggest options. You don't have to bring anything to attend the presentation; come and see what others have brought. Door prizes! More details in flyer.

Genealogy Help
In-person - Bellevue Library, 2nd floor computer lab

If National Family History Month inspires you to look again at one of your "brick walls" and get another genealogist's perspective on it, drop by our Genealogy Helpdesk at the Bellevue Library. EGS has members available on the 2nd and 4th Thursdays of each month between 10:30 AM and 12:30 PM. October dates are the 8th and 22nd.

Learning Circle

Kimberly Nichols and Marcia Williams are collaborating to launch a monthly discussion series called, "Learning Circle—Irish Foundations" designed for those interested in exploring their Irish roots.

Meetings will take place on the first Monday of each month, beginning on October 5, at 1:30 PM PT via Zoom. An active Legacy Family Tree Webinars subscription is required to access the selected monthly webinar that you will watch on your own prior to each meeting. The group will discuss the research strategies, records, and resources presented and, most importantly, how to apply them to your own Irish genealogy research. If you're interested, reach out to Kimberly to be added to the email list and receive more information. See page 6 for more details.

Lisa Louise Cooke - October Program

Our monthly meeting features the dynamic and engaging Lisa Louise Cooke. Lisa is a well-known genealogy author, podcaster, educator, columnist, and speaker who has presented at some of the most prominent genealogy events worldwide. You can find much more information about her, including her Premium Membership service, at <https://lisalouisecooke.com>. Her presentation on October 8 will be, "Google Books: The Tool You Should Use Every Day." Explore Google Books for genealogy on your own before the meeting. See page 11 for ideas. Please join us!

I hope you make lots of progress in your research during National Family History Month!

OUR NEXT VIRTUAL MEETING

Friday, October 2, 2026 from 12:30-2:30 PM PT

Topic: German Research for the Everyday American

- Unique sources for finding a German hometown in American records
- Determining the exact location of the German town using Meyers Gazetteer and Hansen's Map Guides
- Locating the records available for that town using Archion, Matricula and Basia Famula

These are the basic steps that will help attendees locate their ancestors in German records.

Family history provided the perfect outlet for Karynne's love of languages. A German and Portuguese genealogist, she enjoys finding her clients' ancestors and translating documents.

While studying Family History/Genealogy at Brigham Young University (BYU), she worked under the direction of Dr. Robert Minert on the German Immigrants in American Church Records series. She graduated with a bachelor's degree in 2019.

Results of the EGS Member Survey May 2026

Last May, we asked members to participate in a survey regarding EGS. Following are the results. Each pie chart shows the percentage of answers received for that item. The numbers on the right of each answer choice show how many people selected that answer. The number at the bottom shows how many total people answered that question. There were 54 total respondents.

Twisted Braches - Olde English
Ancestors

This month’s request for Olde English Ancestors brought a high number of responses from EGS members. As hoped, reviewing the lists identified at least two members who share common ancestors: Janice Leitzke and Marcia Williams share some 9th and 10th great grandparents.

If you look at the lists, you may find some names that match your research. To connect with an EGS member, email me. I will ask the member to contact you, if they wish. Perhaps sharing twigs on your databases will open new research. This option is available to EGS members only.

Marcia Williams

A few notes:

The purpose of the following lists is to help members connect. It is not intended to be the basis for definitive name, date, or location updating for your files. In some cases, the input on dates had “Abt” next to dates, and I just used the dates. Also - due to space limitations, I reduced the locations to counties. Finally, any omissions and errors in name spelling and dates are my errors, as I had to type everything into a format for sharing.

Twisted Branches

One more story...

Of course with Mayflower ancestors, one branch of my tree is English. As with many who have Colonial New England roots, lots of other ancestors came from England as well on my maternal side. One of the most fascinating was Elizabeth Fones (1610-1673). She was rather scandalous for her time, A niece of Governor Winthrop, a founder of the Massachusetts Bay colony, she married three times. At one point, she was accused of witchcraft and had to escape town in the middle of the night. Later, unable to get a divorce from her second husband, she fled with her lover to New Amsterdam (New York) where the laws were less rigid.

Her story was published by a well-known historical fiction writer, Anya Seton, in the book The Winthrop Woman.
